

PHYS325: To-do list in week 1

Hi, everyone! Welcome to PHYS325.

Here are some basic things to-do before your first class.

First, check out the course website, which has a ton of information
<https://courses.physics.illinois.edu/phys325/sp2023/>

Before your first lecture (Tues)

1. Complete the pre-lecture videos and reading/checkpoint for lecture1 on smartPhysics by Tues @ 8 AM (you can get to smartPhysics from the course website).
 - I realize that this assignment is due on the first day of classes, which is sort of mean, because it means you have to do homework before classes start. If you cannot complete this first assignment for Tuesday, that's fine. You can complete it by Thursday 8AM for full credit.
2. Register your iClicker and bring it to lecture.
(see "iClicker Info" page on the course website for more details.)

If you have any questions...

- Chances are the answer is on the course website or in the pre-lecture video.
- Save any outstanding questions for the first lecture – there will be a chance to get them answered.
